

ABSTRACT

An access point of a network maintains information about data received at the access point from a server accessible via the network and provides to the server the information maintained at the access point. The access point then receives from the server
5 a payment for an account associated with an operator of the access point.

15685.P067